Religion

Despite an Ontario Court of Appeal ruling last week that found some religious education unconstitutional, classes in Haliburton will remain unchanged for the time being. Please see page 2.

Carnival

Perfect weather and a steady schedule of entertaining events combined to make this year's Kinsmen Winter Carnival one of the most successful in recent years. Please see page 6.

Winter safety

The OPP have reported an increase in the number of snowmobile accidents this season. But the sport is still being called safe by both police and the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association. Please see page 12.

Health care

A change in the way long-term health care is provided by the Ministry of Health and the Ministry of Community and Social Services will have an impact on Haliburton County's health care system. Please see page 13.

Drugs

The first in a series of drug awareness sessions for teachers and staff at the Haliburton County Board of Education began recently.

Please see page 18.

The Highlands weren't graced with an abundance of snow in January, but there was enough to keep the toboggan hills open for the children to play on. Adam Aggett, Steven Johnson and Michael Johnson of Minden took advantage of the mild weather last weekend to get out on the slope behind the Minden Communty Centre with their sleds.

Air quality still a problem

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

With air quality in the Archie Stouffer Elementary School annex still a problem, the Home and School Association is asking the board of education to equip the building with an air-to-air heat exchanger.

Air quality in the annex has been a concern of the association since the board leased the former IGA building for use as classrooms in 1988. The results of two air quality studies—one conducted in January, 1989, by the Health Unit, and another conducted in October by the Ministry of Labour—indicate a problem with air quality does exist.

Although the school board has taken some measures to improve the situation, the home and school association believes an improved air exchange system is the only practical solution.

Association member Kathy Stainton has been involved in organizing the group's efforts to deal with the problem. She feels the issue of air quality in the school is too important to risk taking a chance with the students' health and says she wants the association and the school board to work together in finding a suitable solution.

Representatives of the association met last week with the board's Special Projects committee to air their concerns. The committee will report on the meeting to all the trustees at the next board meeting in February.

In a written presentation to the committee, the Home and School Association concludes "the evidence shows that the students and staff at the primary school are being exposed to high levels of carbon dioxide, due to the poor ventilation in the building. This problem is very serious and calls for immediate action."

The first study, conducted by Tom Reddering of the Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit in January, 1989, found that the existing fresh outside air intake was not functioning properly and "it appeared that the ventilation system was unable to maintain a healthy environment for children and staff."

In the two classrooms tested, Reddering found levels of carbon dioxide reaching as high as 2200 parts per million (ppm). Levels above 600-1000 ppm indicate a problem with ventilation.

Although carbon dioxide is not hazardous to health at these concentrations, it's presence is an indication that ventilation and fresh air intake should be improved.

Reddering also found that in the janitorial room a return air intake vent was located directly below where toxic cleaning supplies are stored. He said that if accidentally a container spilled or leaked, the ventilation system would draw the fumes in and distribute them through the building.

As a result of his inspection, Reddering made five recommendations:

Religion classes unchanged for the time being

Religion classes at Haliburton County schools will remain unchanged until the school board receives some direction from the Ministry of Education regarding the implications of last week's Ontario Court of Appeal ruling.

At a hearing in Toronto last week, the court found that a regulation in the Education Act that allows religious instruction to indoctrinate students in the Christian faith is in violation of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

The court's decision will likely have an effect on the religion curriculum for this county, Education Director Stuart Baker said Wednesday in an interview with The Times. However, he said the board will not be altering its religion classes until the ministry reviews the ruling and provides a directive.

The Court of Appeal ruling stems from a complaint against the Elgin County Board of Education. The court ordered that school board to discontinue its religion courses.

The ministry will be looking into the implications of this ruling, said Rob Wooler, a spokesman from the Minister of Education's office. Once that study is completed, the ministry will be communicating with school boards and providing some direction, he said in a telephone interview from Toronto.

Until the ministry has had a chance to review the implications, it is up to the individual school boards to proceed as they see fit, Wooler said. School boards should look at their own situations and if they see no problem with the present course, they should con-

School board faces high costs to improve the air quality at annex

Corrective measures have had some effect, but more must be done.

- That the ventilation system be improved (especially the provision of outside fresh air) and further testing be performed;
- That a door be provided on the cleaning supply room to deny access to children;
- That the cleaning supplies and return air vent be seperated to disallow contamination of the air within the building,
- That mechanical ventilation in washrooms be vented to the outside and not above the suspended ceiling, and
- That provisions be made for adequate air exchange between classrooms.

During the summer the board took measures to try to correct the situation.

Additional windows were installed, and ducts from the air conditioner were extended to two rooms that did not previously have them.

The board's business administrator said the cost of the work was about $3,500. By opening doors and windows throughout the day, the board hoped enough fresh air could be introduced into the building to maintain adequate air qualitiy.

In September, the school was visited by inspectors from the Ministry of Labour's Health and Safety Services Branch.

Although levels of carbon dioxide measured at that time were lower than those measured in January, the ministry inspector reported "it would appear that the ventilation changes done over the summer have had little effect on indoor air quality," and "based on present and past carbon dioxide measurements, there is not an adequate supply of outside air."

In October, ministry inspectors carried out a series of air quality tests in all six rooms over the course of a school day.

They found that levels of carbon dioxide peaked after 11 a.m. and varied from 800 and 1500 ppm depending on the room being tested. After 11 a.m the windows and doors were opened perodically and this resulted in a drop in the levels of carbon dioxide to between 440 and 710 ppm.

As a result of the October tests, inspectors concluded "the installation of openable windows over the summer seems to allow much improved general ventilation and may be a suitable means to provide an adequate supply of outside air."

However, the report also says "it may happen that in colder weather the heating system will not be able to keep the school warm enough with frequent window opening."

But Bradley says that because the school is equipped with two furnaces, one oil and one electric, maintaining a confortable temperature in the building with windows open does not present a problem. He says the extra cost to heat the school with the doors and windows being opened periodically are "marginal."

The dilemma facing the school board is that it leases the building rather than owning it. It was rented for a three-year term to provide temporary relief to the classroom shortage at Archie Stouffer.

Bradley says the estimated cost of the air exchange system the Home and School Assocation is asking for is $16,000 and trustees may be reluctant to spend that much money on a building that is only being rented until the end of the 1991 school year.

Two weeks ago, Reddering prepared a follow-up report on the adequacy of the ventilation system at the annex. He found that of the five recommendations he made in January 1989, only the one regarding the installation of a door on the cleaning supply room had been fulfilled. The cleaning supplies have yet to separated from the return air vent, and the mechanical ventilation in the washrooms is still vented above the suspended ceiling and not outside.

Although the board has attempted to improve the amount of fresh air entering the building and allow for adequate air exchange between the classrooms, Reddering says "the study performed by the Ministry of Labour appears to dispute the adequacy of the work."

In his report, Reddering says "it is understood the opening of doors and windows is necessary in this school to maintain a healthy environment throughout the day" but "allowing the school to operate under such conditions would not be a practical solution.

"The staff will not know how long and when the doors and windows must be opened. Also other problems may be generated such as cold drafts and the furnace working overtime to maintain a proper temperature."

Although the Home and School Association recognizes the efforts made by the board to correct the air quality in the school, they feel proper air intake equipment should still be purchased.

Stainton says that despite the fact the annex is only a temporary accommodation, "these kids are not temporary."

She said she doesn't want to see the school board "using dollars and cents against air." Although the association realizes air quality in the school can be maintained by opening doors and windows, Stainton says teachers shouldn't be burdened with the added responsibility of trying to know when the air is stale and windows and doors should be opened.

When the board builds new accommodation and vacates the annex, Stainton says the air exchange system can be removed from the building and placed in the new school so the money spent on the equipment won't be wasted.

The Home and School Association is willing to contribute to the cost of the equipment, but given the price tag "we can't do it all."

The Association is hoping to present their concerns to the board before this year's budget is set.

Keep religion

Religion in Ontario's public schools has again been placed under the microscope of the Ministry of Education, and the Haliburton County Board of Education must ultimately respond with changes to its curriculum.

Last week the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled that a regulation under the provincial Education Act allowing for indoctrination into the Christian Faith violates the Charter of Rights and Freedoms. In its decision, the court has recognized that although Christianity is the most popular faith in the the province, it is not the only faith and should not be presented as such.

Since Christianity has traditionally been the main focus of Religion classes in Haliburton County schools, the board will now soon have to address the implications of this ruling. The options that will likely be available to school boards are to either discontinue religion classes or to design a curriculum that will provide students with an understanding of a variety of faiths.

We applaud the court's ruling on this issue, but shudder at the thought of dropping religion class entirely. Religion is as valuable a topic to be taught in schools, equally as important as geography or history. It has been an important element in building of nations, the start of wars, and the knitting of our moral and ethical fabric.

Religion must continue to be taught in our schools, but modifications should be made to the course. The material should be presented as information with personal beliefs set aside. It should provide students with an understanding of their own faith as well as others'.

By providing our youth with the facts about the world's religions, we are providing them with the knowledge necessary for the concept of a true 'global village' to exist.

Instead of dropping religion from the curriculum, we believe it should be expanded. A world religion course at the secondary school level would be a fascinating and extremely valuable topic.

Two cheers for court ruling

Directions

by Edward Moll

Two cheers for the Ontario Court of Appeal's decision to ban the promotion of exclusively Christian teaching in the religious education in Ontario schools. And three cheers for Jim and Nancy Millington and their daughter Andrea for their courage and persistence to bring this change about. They were the residents of a community in Elgin County who were deeply disturbed by the effect that this kind of teaching was having on their family.

Why two cheers for the decision?

The first cheer is for the court's recognition that Christian indoctrination and convert-making disguised as "religious education" have no place in a public school system. The manipulation and psychological terrorism exercised in the curriculum of the Bible club in Elgin County was harmful to the point that it gave Andrea Millington nightmares of burning in hell. No seven-year-old needs that. Those who would consign non-believing children, not to mention those who hold a faith other than Christianity, to the fire of hell's damnation run directly against the entire spirit of Jesus' teaching, and commit a blasphemous offence against God's love for all of humankind. Jesus himself reserved his harshest criticism for those who thought themselves more righteous than others, and those who exploited the weak and the poor.

Draping oneself with the flag of religious education while aiming to convert children exclusively to Christianity, or any other faith, smacks of low deceit. I hope the court decision will prevent this kind of thing from happening again.

So much for the first cheer.

The second cheer is for the court's recognition that religious education can no longer be exclusively Christian.

Whatever Egerton Ryerson, a noble Methodist if ever there was one, may have intended for a public school system back in the middle to late nineteenth century Upper Canada, the concept of strictly Christian religious education had to change over the years. With the phenomenal shrinking of the world through improved transportation and communications, with the massive population shifts through immigration and two World Wars, with the increasing consciousness that Christianity, as a world faith, did not possess the only claim to religious truth; with all that change came the urgent need for awareness, understanding and mutual respect among different faiths. Without these needs met there is the constant reality of fear, bigotry, and hatred borne out of ignorance - a reality that is all too common in our daily lives.

Exclusively Christian religious education denies the respect and understanding we as human beings owe to other faiths in the world. Religious education which includes an imaginative awareness of how other people, cultures, and nations believe shows not just respect, but a common courtesy to others. It is the golden rule writ large.

That's two cheers. Why only two?

In so many reports and judgements, no one really offers alternative solutions. In the absence of these, it is all too easy to drop the matter. The enemy here is not the plurality of faith, but a political and materialist indifference to the value of religious faith in society. It is too easy to ban religious education altogether, just as it is too easy to teach Christian faith to the exclusion of all the others. What, then, can be done?

The first thing is to acknowledge that every world religion is different. To say "Well, we all believe the same thing", is a simplistic and thoughtless denial of the unique contribution that every world religion has to bring to us. Thus, as a Christian, I have no problem with my belief in Jesus. His life, death and raising from the dead, bring a unique vision of God's loving intention for this world. Islam brings another; Judaism yet another, and so on.

British papers, the very best and very worst

You cannot hope to bribe or twist thank God! the British journalist but seing what the man will do unbribed, there's no occasion to.
Humbert Wolfe

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

Sometimes I think I'd like to visit England just for the thrill of strolling down to a London newspaper kiosk and browsing through the morning headlines. One of the few fine remaining pleasures of life in that sad and shabby kingdom is the range of newspapers you can peruse. For a modest mittful of new pence you can take your choice of anything from the august London Times at the upscale end all the way down to scuzzy, unspeakable typographical excrescences like the Mirror and The Sun. For a journophile like yours truly, reading the British press is like living in a lovely English garden overlooking a garbage dump.

The best of British journalism is unquestionable very good indeed. But the worst, my dears, is among the very worst in the world. If you haven't stained your fingers on a typical British tabloid then you don't know how low the Fourth Estate can stoop. Canadian tabloids are flashy, irreverent and occasionally outrageous, but Canadian tabs are to British tabs as a Brownie pack is to the Mongol hordes.

Few institutions can be mindlessly chauvinistic or stupefyingly sexist as a British tabloid newspaper in full screech. They flay the Royal family unmercifully, insinuating that Prince Charles is an airhead and Princes Margaret a souse. They publish full page photos of naked nymphets, complete with slavering, sleazy captions about "Luscious Lily's garden of natural delights." There are five basic staples for a classic British tabloid item: sex, soccer, sex, scandal and sex. And if you can throw in a pinch of aristocratic philandery, you've got yourself a front page byline, mate.

All of which made me do a serious double take when I saw the headline in my non-British, non-tabloid copy of the Globe and Mail last week. U.K. TABS SIGN ETHICS CODE it reads.

British tabloids? An ethnics code?? is like

Developer thinks area development is too slow

Editor:

It has come time to explain to the General Public what is really happening in their Community.

I have explained to the Planning Advisory Committee that I don't believe they are for development because the agenda speaks for itself. I said, "We went from a two-page agenda, twice a month while I was here, to a one-page agenda once a month. "The argument was it is the time of year. This is hogwash; people apply to do things in the winter so they can start them in the spring or summer.

One comment made is we are going so fast. My response is we are going too slow. If obstacles beyond belief are put in developers' paths, they just go to another town or municipality that is more cooperative. There are more people willing to invest in Anson, Hindon and Minden. However, if their plans are stalled and delayed for nit picking reasons, you will have a lot of potential investors reluctant to invest a few million dollars in this community and the end result is loss of jobs and conveniences that people want when they come up to our beautiful community. If we don't provide the services to the general public that they want then they go to the communities that do provide them and welcome expansion.

I have been trying since last July to get some severances off the front of my property so we can build a new bank with an instant teller that Haliburton has and we don't and a new bake shop with coffee and doughnut shop. However, the Planning Advisory Committee does not want to let me because they want me to go Plan of Subdivision on four lots. Who else has to do this?

They want me to pay Bob Lehman, their planner, $1,500 to tell me how to do my development. Under Minden's official plan, my property is designated Village Commercial and in 1985 they and Bob Lehman designated it Village Commercial and now they want me to pay $1,500 for him to tell me how to do it. I believe my Engineer and I, already know how to develop and I thought this is what the Planning Advisory committee gets paid for is to make decisions instead of letting Bob Lehman the Planner make them all. They have asked me to include my property in with my wife's property in a Plan of Subdivision. Even though it is separate properties and I would have to do two plans of subdivision. They said morally it's all one property. I think its ironic that they would talk about moral issues. One would suspect they don't practise what they preach.

Bern Berry said you live with your wife and if you had a divorce, you both live together, I suspect in the same household so you would be entitled to 50 percent and she gets 50 percent. I am sure if it worked out this way anyone wanting a divorce may consider using Bern Berry for this excellent piece of wisdom or would one suspect he is trying to be catty.

The ironic part of the whole thing is my wife has asked council to ask Verne Graham and the Chairman, Dean Elliot to resign from their position on the Former resident saw little improvement in four years

Editor:

In answer to your letters appearing in The Times on January 2, 1990 in which the zoning of our previous home is in question. I should like to inform you that we were zoned Commercial which included paying increased taxes for this zoning.

We were a new business (denture therapy) in town in 1985 and at no time were we extended a welcome by either the Chamber of Commerce or the municipality. When we purchased this house we had a paved driveway and parking area installed for our patients' use. We ourselves were senior citizens and most of our patients fell into this category. For three years we snowplowed the driveway faithfully—the driveway was accessible at all times with sand and salt used on any icy spots. The township snowplow repeatedly filled in the lower section of the driveway. It was extremely frustrating to us to have worked a couple of hours and to turn around and repeat the task again because of a snowplow run by the township. We finally wrote letters to Mr. Cameron (municipal official) regarding this problem impressing on him the fact we were running a service particularly for seniors. We asked him to lift the blade past the driveway or else take the blade and remove the excess on the municipal portion of our driveway. It was noted that Dr. Holliday-Rhodes, immediately across the road, had his front entrance plowed by them—we were informed this was because the sidewalk had to be kept plowed. If you or anyone else in Minden could possibly walk on this sidewalk at any time from October through to the end of March it would have been a miracle.

We closed our business the fourth winter in Minden and the citizens now have the privilege of travelling to Lindsay or Orillia for the same service we provided them in Minden.

When we purchased this property in 1985 it was quite an eyesore on the main street. We spent time, money and plenty of muscle to enhance the appearance of the property. (i.e. our rock garden.)

In the fours years we lived in Minden, we saw few improvements and little done to enhance its beauty and make it attractive to tourists. The sidewalks were a mess and absolutely no effort was made to keep the streets clean. We were constantly having to clean the garbage out of the ditch in front of our house when people threw their foam coffee cups, candy wrappers, cigarette packages, and beer bottles. In other words, nobody seemed concerned about the aesthetic quality of Minden.

Now, I see where a business sign erected by Mr. Bradamore for his business is important enough and causing great concern by the same individuals who have showed no pride in their village. If this isn't harassment, then I don't know the meaning of the word.

Let these small-minded people look after their own interests. In my opinion, Minden is extremely fortunate in having a person of Mr. Bradamore's initiative and drive enter your area with refreshing new ideas that could put Minden on a competitive level with Haliburton in attracting tourist trade to your area.

Sled Dog Derby an example of how events should be run

Editor:

As businesspeople who are happy to see events held in this community as they help attract people to this area, we would like to comment on the recent holding of the Minden Sled Dog Derby.

In our opinion the Derby is an example of how things can be if they are done right. Over the years we have watched it grow and become more successful. The planning and organization is most professional and the advertising leading up to the event is very well done. Obviously the dedication of the individuals involved in organizing the Derby shines through. They all deserve a big round of applause. Because the Derby was a success, we had a prosperous weekend.

We would like to say thank you.

British journalism, the good, bad and ugly

Miky Tyson becoming a Buddhist.

Under the new code, British newspapers will have to justify their intrusions into private lives, mistakes will be acknowledged in print with the same prominence the original items enjoyed and henceforth editors will no long pay criminals, their families or their associates for rights to their "stories".

All of which sounds very laudable, but adherence to the code is strictly voluntary. There's no law that will force any newspaper to actually follow through and obey the code.

You will forgive an old cynic for suspecting that it will be a frosty Friday on Fleet Street before the editors of the Sun or the Mirror send their reporters out with the gentle admonition to be fair, gentle and upright at all times.

I prefer to believe that the British press will continue to offer the bewildering and occasionally revolting kaleidoscope of journalism that it has always served up. A full spectrum--good, bad and ugly--that has been deftly summarized in this exerpt from the book Yes, Prime Minister by Jonathon Lynn and Anthony Jay:

"The Times is read by the people who run the country. The Daily Mirror is read by the people who think they run the country. The Guardian is read by the people who think they ought to run the country. The Morning Star is read by people who think the country ought to be run by another country. The Independent is read by people who don't know who runs the country but are sure they're doing it wrong. The Daily Mail is read by the wives of the people who run the country. The Financial Times is read by the people who own the country. The Daily Express is read by the people who think the country ought to be run as it used to be run. The Sun's readers don't care who runs the country provided she has big boobs."

Carnival delights

With the sun shining and temperatures hovering just above freezing, conditions were perfect for the Minden Kinsmen Winter Carnival on January 26, 27 and 28. As a result, hundreds of people participated in the many activities for young and old alike.

Jug City juggernauts hit stride for playoffs

At all costs, avoid peaking too soon.

This seems to be the strategy of the Westside Jug City hockey team, which avoided winning a game for most of the season only to turn around and win three straight as the season winds down.

With only one game left in the regular schedule, the late-blooming juggernauts have no chance of climbing out of the basement of the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League, but their recent showings declare them a team to be reckoned with when the playoffs begin.

Last Monday, Westside slammed The Times 10-3 to claim their third win. A week earlier they dumped Hartwick and on Jan. 15 they beat Home Hardware.

Kim Hamilton, Bernie Upton and Sid MacKiegen each flashed three goals past Times goalie Terry Crowe in the second game of the night on Jan. 29. Bart Hilhorst pushed the score into double digits with one of his own.

Ivan Ingram led the scoring for The Times with two, while Eldon Bull scored once.

The loss leaves The Times back in a tie for fourth place in the standings with the Rockcliffe Tavern.

In spite of another loss this week, Stamp Fuels still heads the league with 21 points, followed by a neck-and-neck race for second between Hartwick and Home. Hartwick has 17 points going into the final game while Home has 16. These two teams will meet tonight (Monday) at 10 p.m. for the final showdown.

The opening game of the night last Monday had Home Hardware outpacing the Rockcliffe by a 6-3 margin. Scott Hamilton and Dave Pettes each scored twice for the winners. Singles came off the sticks of Barry Shaw and Kim Colliss.

The Rockcliffe's Dave Hartwick slipped two past Home goalie Kevin Smith in this ill-fated game. Collin Newell added the third Rockcliffe marker.

Hartwick's rise in the standings continued in the final game of the night as they upset the league leaders 12-8.

Brian Shaw upped his season goal-scoring tally to 31 with another three-goal game for Hartwick. Wade Stamp added two and singles came from Jeff Howe, Billy Whittaker, Tom Miscio and Larry Sawyer.

Exon Gravel led Stamp Fuels in this game with three goals. Greg Newell, Greg Carpenter and Daryl Ward added one each.

Tonight's action begins at 7 p.m. when The Times meets up with Stamp Fuels. At 8:30 p.m., the Rockcliffe will try to put a stop to the Westside winning streak. And at 10 p.m. Home and Hartwick will battle it out for the second place standing.

Blitzkrieg approach

Editor:

I am a woodworker and a tree planter. Like many others, I am sure, I am often insensitive to affective environmental damage because of a childlike fascination with machinery and processes which perpetrate "progress".

However, the thought that awakens me is the realization that areas affected will simply never be the same. Without a doubt, the clearcut forests of northern Ontario and British Columbia, in which I have planted, will forever bear the mark of short-sighted attitudes. As the landscape around Highway 118 in Carnarvon is altered beyond recognition for road "improvements", I am forced to question the blitzkrieg approach with which the work is being done.

Should towering piles of brush and logs be allowed to burn unattended 24 hours a day? Should the petitions of concerned residents be ignored in order to turn once cherished trees into charred embers? If finances are indeed unavailable to maintain our railways, provide affordable housing to the underprivileged, assure our elders of decent pensions or ensure environmental protection; how can wider, faster, straighter roadways possibly be the overriding priority?

Our dominant business-as-usual approach, insensitive to individual concerns, should be questioned by us all so that decisions affecting our future are made by public input and mutual consent.

New route needed

Editor:

After the events of the past two weekends, I felt I'd like to write a letter to area snowmobilers.

There has been a change in their routes this year. I live on the Buckslides Bay Road. Last year, my golden retriever was hit by a snowmobile at the end of my driveway. A few minutes later, another group of smowmobilers carried him to our door (thank you to them). This year, my neighbour's cat was hit by a machine and died a few days later. Three adults were forced to jump out of the way of machines that were crossing over their property—at speed. One gentleman was forced to the hood of his car to escape a fast-moving machine in his driveway. Two people on either side of me have had water lines and septic tanks frozen by machine traffic over pipes.

I was asked by one gentleman on a snowmobile who I stopped to speak with: "What's wrong with you guys, don't you like snowmobiles?" Most of us used to own machines, and many still enjoy the sport. It is indeed sad that a few have spoiled it for the many. However, to protect our property, our children, our pets and ourselves we've resorted to drastic measures! Our road is now posted as Private. Our sign reads: "Private property. No snowmobiling. No lake access."

I might point out our initial attempts to post signs were met with frustration as snowmobilers tore down signs as fast as we could put them up! Be forwarned—the OPP are quite supportive of our plight, and have agreed to assist us in laying trespassing charges wherever possible and necessary. A number of charges were laid by property owners on the weekend of January 6 and 7 and we'll continue to do so until our right to safety on our own property is respected.

We all realize this road has been th. major connecting route between Lakes Boshkung and Kushog. Perhaps your Association could start working on an acceptable route for next year, so the many responsible users of the system could continue to enjoy it.

J. Chadwick,
Minden.

Psychiatrist criticizes health care study's private meetings

Editor:

Your newspaper's concealment of my concerns about Haliburton County's secret District Health Council Hearings, reveals a lamentable bias toward the elite group who are secretly charting Haliburton's needs. Since the Vice-Chairman of the District Health Council Committee is publisher and owner of your newspaper, I accuse you of an editorial bias harmful to Haliburton County's interests.

It was all the more disturbing because you railed against secret government in an editorial last year.

On Saturday, December 23/89, you joyfully announced: "Health study will let us have our say ... The study of Haliburton County's long-term health care requirements will give local people a chance to tell the province what those requirements should be, says the chairman of the steering committee formed to conduct the study ... Input to the committee will come from people who provide social and health services, consumers of social and health services and "just average residents," says Dikun ... The success of the study will depend on the committee members having no preconceived notions, approaching the topic with an open mind and taking an open, positive, honest look at what residents of the county need in terms of long-terms health care and social services ... Although the committee meetings will be closed, Dikun says she will meet with the press after each meeting to keep the public informed of the progress and to release to the public anything of use that comes up around the table."

I can't for the life of me see how District Health Council Chairperson Maureen Dikun can expect a meaningful dialogue with "people who provide social and health services, consumers of social and health services and just average residents" if they're condemned to secret hearings reported only by herself.

This particularly galls me because Ms. Dikun has been avoiding me for several weeks.

When I tried to reach her from Minden, Wednesday, January 10, her staff reported that she was "away on important business" until the following week. Actually she was conducting one of her secret hearings in Minden.

I am very disappointed in your newspaper's failure to publish my letter to this champion of free speech, a letter that was given to you personally several weeks ago.

I have grave concerns about the adult mental health service envisioned by Haliburton County's self-proclaimed "Social Action Committee" under its empire-building chairperson, Gena Robertson.

I ask you and your competitor, The Haliburton County Echo (which has championed Ms. Robertson's dream while refusing to give any coverage of my correspondence with the Ministry, Members of Parliament and District Health Council) to publish in its entirety my January 2 letter to Maureen Dikun attached, along with an explanation of your reluctance to address the issues contained therein.

Alan S. Davidson,
M.D., F.R.C.P. (C)

NOTE: The following letter, dated January 2, is addressed to Maureen Dikun, Chairperson of the District Health Council.

Dear Ms. Dikun:

I'm responding to a Minden Times article of last week concerning your Haliburton County Hearings. While I don't have the article in front of me, it said that you're intending a thorough and meaningful dialogue with public and professionals alike.

What distresses me is your seeming intention to hold public hearings in private. While I recognize your wish to get this matter concluded as quickly as possible, secret hearings thwart your proclaimed egalitarian purpose and invite disrespect for government.

As you must already know, I've got serious concerns about the seeming intentions of Haliburton's self-proclaimed "Social Action Committee" to establish an unprofessional, socially harmful community mental health service for adults.

These concerns have been expressed privately to Social Action Committee Chairperson, Gena Robertson, the Minister of Health, your District Health Council, the Honourable John Eakins and Haliburton County MP, Bill Scott, as well as the Haliburton County Echo.

So far there has been no response.

It is my wish to make a public, recorded submission to your Task Force. Alternatively, you might think of appointing me to it.

My interest in Haliburton and commitment to its health needs are widely known.

Allan S. Davidson,
M.D., F.R.C.P. (C)

EDITOR'S NOTE: The story about the boy who cried wolf is an apt analogy to the difficulties you seem to be facing. As the story goes, the boy got a reaction the first few times he hollered, but eventually people caught on to his antics and paid no attention to his calls for help.

Like this little boy, you're own credibility comes into question in my eyes after listening to you criticize anyone who doesn't see things your way.

Today's letter is a good example. In it you manage to criticize The Times, Jack Brezina, Maureen Dikun, the Social Action Committee, Gena Robertson, The Haliburton County Echo and myself.

Regarding your claim that we failed to publish one of your letters, it was my understanding that the letter, which was addressed to Dikun, was given to me for information. If you wanted it published as letter to the editor, you should have said so.

Regarding my "reluctance to address the issues contained therein," I have only one comment to make:

"Wolf!"

'A fantastic job'

The following letter was received by Minden Sled Dog Derby organizer Val Lougheed. She felt the sentiments expressed by the writer should be shared with the community.

Dear Val:

We were lucky enough to attend the Minden Sled Dog Derby this year. I've wanted to go for about six years now!

We arrived at about 10:30 a.m. on the Saturday and couldn't believe it! You and the volunteers did a fantastic job of organizing a fun-filled, action-packed day. Despite the cold the volunteers who were standing all day kept their humour till the end.

Your planning and work paid off. As a spectator, I was thoroughly thrilled. I'd never been to a sled dog race. In one day I got to see all — the start, the pits (I spoke to loads of racers), the trail, the hill behind the arena. I saw it all!

Thanks to you and all who worked so hard to make a day fun. Myself and my 3 friends enjoyed it immensely!

Congratulations to a job well done!

The decade debate

Editor:

It is with some hesitation that I join the debate over when decades begin and end. Susan Wilson is right — this is only a warm-up for a real fuss ten years from now.

Unfortunately, that is all I can agree about with Susan in this matter. An easy answer might be that a decade is ten years and could cover any period of that length: 1 July 1867 to 30 June 1877 was the first decade of Confederation. In this way, ten years all starting with 198 are easily referred to as "The Eighties".

The problem comes with those rarer centuries and the impending millennium. To me the quotation from Professor L.E. Jones is wrong. We do not count things with zero. We start 1, 2, 3 with apples, dollars, and with years. There was no year zero. (Leaving aside that no one was counting them then!) Thus a century had not been completed until the end of the year numbered 100.

Professor Jones' argument of a person's age confuses the issue. We speak of age in a short form for time completed. Of course we do not speak of a 0 year-old: we speak of three week-olds and four month-olds, the time they have completed. In older folks we (kindly) ignore those days more than the last complete year unless we refer to someone in his "79th year". When does someone celebrate a 100th birthday? At the end of that 100th year. If that person had been born on the first day of the current era (1 January 1) that 100th birthday would have fallen on 1 January 101! That is when the first century would have been complete too.

But I have a plan for the end of the century. All of this argument is not really convincing those of the other opinion so we shall have to have two millennial celebrations, one on 1 January 2000 and another on 1 January 2001. With such an event why not cover all the possibilities? I'm already saving for the champagne.

David McKnight,

Free toddler clinic being held by Health Unit

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge Health Unit has announced it will be holding a series of free toddler clinics in the county at the end of February.

The clinics, targetted for children aged three to three-and-a-half years, will test vision, hearing and speech. An immunization assessment will also be done.

The aim of the clinic is to identify problems that might interfere with the child's performance in school, before they enter the education system, says Marg Graham of the Health Unit.

The screening done at the clinics will replace similar testing that has been done when the children reach Kindergarten.

If a problem with a child's hearing or vision is discovered as a result of the tests, the information will be given to the school, with the parents' consent, so teachers can compensate for any problems that may arise.

The problem will also be referred to the child's doctor so proper treatment or corrective measures can be taken.

Mary Lou Mills, the Supervisor of Public Health Nursing for the Health Unit, says it may take a teacher three or four months of working with a child to discover that problems with classroom work may be the result of a hearing or vision impairment. As a result of the toddler clinics, the teacher will be aware of the situation from the first day of school.

Mills says the Health Unit is being very firm about the age restrictions because the test being conducted are designed specifically for those age groups.

Even if a child is only two weeks away from his third birthday, he will not be eligible for the clinic. A second clinic is being held next fall to cover those children who reach the target age in the meantime, and the clinics will continue to be held twice a year.

Children who are too old for the toddler clinics will be tested when they reach Grade One and testing will be carried out every year in that grade.

Dorset School principal Michele Coneybeare says if a teacher doesn't know a child has a hearing impairment, she may contribute problems in class work to inattentiveness which in turn frustrates the student.

By being informed of a medical problem, the teacher may be able to compensate by simply moving the child to the front of the class or making sure she speaks to him from the side he hears the best.

By testing the children while they are still at least a year away from entering school, Graham says there is sufficient lead time for medical treatment or corrective measures to be taken.

The testing will be done by a public health nurse and a technician and the entire process will only take about 30 minutes. Parents are required to accompany their children to the clinics because there will be questionnaires for them to complete.

The clinic in Minden will be held at the Community Centre on February 22, and the Haliburton clinic will be held at the Health Unit on February 23.

Parents of children within the targetted age group should call the Health Unit at 457-1391 to make an appointment for the testing.

Clinics will not be scheduled for smaller, outlying communities unless there is sufficient demand, about seven or eight children per clinic.

The clinics are being advertised in the two Haliburton County papers and notices are being sent out in school newsletters. Information is also available on flyers being posted throughout the area or by calling the Health Unit.

This will be the only chance for children to be screened as testing will no longer be offered in Kindergarten.

Locals support victims

Editor:

Re: Letter 'Good Support', January 29.

I would like to thank Pennay Dennison Hewitt for her words of praise for the people of Stanhope.

As a person who knows better how the people of Minden respond to fire victims, I find her words of criticism unfounded. I had people phone me from Minden and other townships with offers of help on December 23, and there have been other times in past years.

Haliburton County has always rallied when there has been trouble. Sometimes people do not hear of the fire until the papers print it. And that may be a week later depending on time of printing.

Ann Barker,
Stanhope.

Planning committee's ethics are questioned by local developer

Planning Advisory Committee because we believe they are in Conflict of Interest when we deal with the Mount Minden Valley View Subdivision owned by my wife and my property that was formerly Dave Robertson's property where the denture therapist lived. Both are within 400 feet of the property on the Mountain and Dean Elliot is within 400 feet of my property.

The Reeve, Ray Moore always declares a Conflict of Interest because his family is putting in a bowling alley beside our property. However, on Thursday, January 18, 1990 and previous dates, neither Verne Graham or Dean Elliot declared a conflict of interest and both are paid members and I believe in conflict of interest because of the proximity of their property in relation to ours.

Another ironic gesture that took place at the meeting was Dean Elliot left his chair as Chairman without notifying anyone and went out to the coffee room and was seen and heard having a conversation with the Reeve who just declared a conflict of interest. Then he came back to his chair and continued to talk on the matter.

I ask the general public and Council what kind of Gong show is this?

They have agreed to rezone my property site specifically because they did not want to allow a gas station or used car lot which is permitted in a C1 zone.

Although they agreed last summer to rezone it Commercial, Bern Berry cannot see a Commercial Plaza down in front of a beautiful house. I have continuously explained that my house will not be a house but a professional office and I will build a new house up on top of the mountain. Then the Chairman pipes up and says well you live in your house and you're in a residential area. I said yes I live in my house and with the new zoning would enjoy a legal non conforming use. However, I don't believe I am in a residential area because the area is designated Village Commercial under the Official Plan which will eventually be all commercial, like the new proposed bowling alley next door. They said but it's not yet and people live in it do they not.

It appears to me the Chairman of the Planning Advisory Committee wants my property to stay residential even though the Official Plan designates it as Village Commercial and they have agreed to rezone it Commercial. However, because of some reason they're not telling they have chosen to give me the royal jerk around. The bottom line is I am going to submit my proposal to the council and the Land Division Committee and if the township denies my application or refuses to deal with them I will first appeal their decision to the Land Division Committee and if necessary appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board and if my severances are granted, sue the municipality for a royal jerk around for no apparent reason; other than some people don't understand or don't want to understand.

I hate to resort to these measures. However when you are put to the test you come out fighting at any cost.

Respectfully submitted for the taxpayers benefit.

Yours truly,
Brad Bradamore,
Minden.

School board vetos computer dating plan

Calling it an inappropriate activity, school board trustees shot an arrow through a bid for a fund-raising event at the high school called 'Cupid's Computer Compatability.

The aim of this light-hearted event was to raise $500 towards the production costs of this year's yearbook.

Yearbook Supervisor David Stephenson outlined the idea in a letter to Director of Education Stuart Baker.

"The committee hopes to sell, to each student, a computer generated list of fellow students, of the opposite sex, with whom they show a high degree of compatibility," said Stephenson's letter.

The students would each fill out a questionnaire and a processing company called Cupid's Computer Compatibility would process the information from the questionnaires to generate the lists.

The lists would be given to the students at a cost of $2 each, 45 cents of which would go to the computer company.

High School principal Peter Forgrave gave his support to the proposal in a letter to Baker.

"My experience is that students have found this to be a very enjoyable, non-threatening, fun time," said Forgrave's letter. "The yearbook provides an important service to the school and also a valuable experience for the students who work together to compile this publication. Anything that we can do to defray the costs is an actual benefit to all of our students."

Non-threatening or not, the majority of school board trustees don't feel this kind of activity is appropriate for schools.

"It has no place in school," said Nancy Stinson.

Craig Petit said that he wouldn't support the request as it stood, but added that if the lists included the names of students from both sexes and the focus was on "getting to know your fellow students" he would be more in favour of it.

"I'd be nervous about getting to know people from my same (gender)," said Tim Casey.

Linda Mumford said that although she supports the efforts of the yearbook committee, she didn't support the computer dating idea.

The proposal was overwhelmingly turned down by the trustees, with Casey casting the only vote in favour of the request.

Acting director named

The Board of Directors of the John Howard Society of Victoria-Haliburton is pleased to announce the appointment of Kathy Neill-Keenan as Acting Executive-Director of the Society. She will be replacing Paula Osmok who is on leave until July of 1990.

Kathy has been with the agency since June of 1987 as Co-ordinator of the Victoria County Outreach Literacy Program and has served as assistant Executive-Director.

Kathy is looking forward to assuming her new responsibilities and ensuring that the John Howard Society continues to play a vital role in the provision of services to the Counties of Victoria and Haliburton.

Replacing Kathy as Co-ordinator of the Victoria County Outreach Literacy Program during this period is Sandra daCosta who has been with the program on a part-time basis for the past two years.

The John Howard Society of Victoria-Haliburton is a nonprofit, charitable social service agency with a mandate of prevention, both primary and secondary. Services currently offered to Victoria County include the Outreach Literacy Program, Housing Co-ordination Program, RESPONSE Men's Group Program for men who use violence to control their partners, Correctional Employment Program, Community and traditional agency services including Community Education.

The Haliburton Highland Literacy Program has recently been established to provide adult literacy services to residents of Haliburton County.

Religion class valuable; Baker

tinue with them, he said. However, he said if board trustees have any doubts, the courses should be suspended.

At elementary schools in Haliburton County, religious education consists of two half-hour periods each week, said Baker. For about the past 30 years the classes have been taught by ministers from churches in the county.

There are no religion courses offered at the high school.

Baker says Christianity is the main theme of the religion classes. Other religions are discussed in an incidental way, he said, when specific questions are asked by the students.

For the most part, Baker says religious education at area schools highlights the values and morals that the people of this county have adhered to for years. Bible stories are read and the teachers respond to whatever questions the students may raise, he said.

Baker says the board has always honoured any requests by parents to have their children excused from these classes.

Regardless of whether religion classes will continue to be offered at elementary schools in the county, Baker said values and morals should still be taught to the students. However, he said he believes religion is a valuable topic to be taught.

Without an understanding of religion, students will have difficulty understanding how society has progressed, he said.

In addition to learning about Christianity, Baker said it would be valuable for students to learn more about other religions. "The more we know about each other, the more tolerant we are of each other."

Snowmobiles: The accident rate has risen over last year with four deaths

Despite the rise in reported snowmobile accidents, injuries and deaths in the Highlands this winter, police and snowmobilers say the popular sport is safe as long as common sense prevails.

Four people have died so far this season in two snowmobiling accidents, said OPP Constable Mike Maybee. The Minden OPP detachment had received reports of 14 snowmobile accidents by January 29, which resulted in six injuries in addition to the deaths.

This compares poorly with the same period a year earlier, when police had received only seven accident reports with five injuries and no fatalities.

Maybee wondered if the rise in accidents might be a reflection of an increase in the number of snowmobilers in the area. However, Norm Gemmell, a member of the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association, says there appears to be fewer sleds out on the trails this winter.

Relatively warm weather and a shortage of snow have made for poor conditions on the 700 km of trails maintained by the association. As a result, Gemmell says more people are heading out onto the lakes with their sleds. Although he says this isn't a big problem for local people who know the lakes, it should be a concern for those who don't.

Gemmell says the association does not discourage people from going out onto the lakes. At the same time, though, he isn't about to tell anyone it's safe to do so. There are areas of open water on many of the lakes in the Highlands, and unless people are familiar with where they are, Gemmel says they could find themselves in trouble. Even those who are familiar with the lakes can easily lose their bearings at night and drive into water, said Gemmell.

On January 20, three Scarborough residents died when the snowmobile they were on went through a section of open water on Halls Lake. The accident happened at about 7:45 p.m.

Maybee says there have been others who have gone through the ice this winter, but they were lucky enough to be able to get out of the water. According to Maybee a fellow officer actually witnessed a snowmobile fall through the ice this winter. The sled went to the bottom of the lake, but the driver managed to climb back up onto the ice.

With the warm weather last month the lakes aren't safe, said Maybee, the OPP's Communications Officer. Some areas that would normally be frozen over by this time of year are wide open. And the areas where open water is normal are larger than they would usually be.

"The ice conditions are not conducive to travel," said Maybee. The absence of a snow covering on the lakes makes it difficult to steer or stop a snowmobile.

Adding to the problem is the fact that previously-travelled trails are difficult to find or follow because rain has erased the tracks.

"If you don't know the lake, you're just going by guess and by golly . . . and down you go," said Maybee.

In spite of the number of snowmobiling accidents, both Maybee and Gemmell say it can be a safe recreational activity.

"It's no more dangerous than driving a car," said Maybee. "If you're aware of the possible dangers and respect the environment and machines, it's a very safe sport."

"It's a safe sport as long as you're a safe person," said Gemmell. A snowmobile, like a car or a boat, has limitations, he said. And as long as people respect those limitations, there is no problem.

However, there is a problem when people climb aboard their snowmobiles and drive them too fast. Gemmell and Maybee agree that speed is one of the main causes of snowmobiling accidents.

Although snowmobiles come with engines capable of carrying the sled to high speeds, the braking and steering mechanisms aren't designed for those speeds. Maybee says it is common for people to outdrive the capabilities of their snowmobiles. They get going too fast and they can't take evasive action, he said.

The danger of high-speed driving is more acute after nightfall, when snowmobilers can outdrive their lights, said Maybee. By the time an obstacle is within reach of the headlights of a snowmobile travelling at high speeds, it is too late to stop or steer away.

Gemmell said there is a maximum speed limit of 50 km. per hour on the HCSA trails. However, he says it is difficult to enforce this rule. The association tries to promote safe driving, but sometimes it falls on deaf ears, says Gemmell.

The association is taking steps to teach the common-sense rules to new snowmobilers. Gemmel says two association members recently completed a course that will allow them to become instruc-

Health care funding will change

Committee told that funds will be based on needs - not beds

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The local committee studying Haliburton County's long-term health care needs now knows what the Ontario government has planned for the future delivery of health care services.

Geoff Quirt, a representative from the Ministry of Community and Social Services who has been involved in the province's long-term care task force, was the guest speaker at last Tuesday's meeting.

Quirt filled committee members in on some of the restructuring of the health care system that will be taking place.

The changes will include a merger of long-term care responsibility which is currently shared by the Ministry of Health and the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

After the meeting, committee chairman Maureen Dikun and health planning analyst Anne Gallant discussed with The Times some of the changes that Quirt outlined to the committee.

One of the problems with delivering long-term health care under the present system is that funding and legislation are fragmented between the two ministries, said Dikun.

What the province is proposing is to pull the responsibilties of the two ministries together and place them under the direction of a separate government body. It is hoped this will lead to a reduction in the duplication of services and resources.

Dikun described Quirt's message as "very positive and up-beat" and said the topic generated a great deal of interest among the committee members.

An off-shoot of the restructuring at the ministry level will be a change in the way services are provided at the community level, including support services and institutional care.

This will include a change in the funding process. Currently the government provides funding based on the number of beds in an institution and the level of care it provides.

Dikun says the focus will change to provide funding based on the needs of the patients, not the beds they occupy.

Under the present system, Gallant says nursing homes would be reluctant to accept residents needing intensive chronic care because the funding for these residents would be no greater than that for residents who require less care.

With the proposed changes, funding would be based on the needs of the patient regardless of whether they were residing in a hospital or a nursing home.

The implication for Haliburton County, which is currently waiting for a chronic care addition to Haliburton Hospital, is that patients needing these beds could be accommodated in nursing homes with no reduction in funding.

It's important for the health study committee to know what changes are coming when it considers its recommendations for the county's long-term health needs, says Dikun.

The committee is also dealing with the way it will receive information from the public. In the near future, Gallant says the committee will invite, through published notices, residents to send written submissions to the committee for consideration.

As well, focus groups made up of consumers and health and social service professionals will be formed around the county to discuss topics relating to the committee's mandate.

The committee will also be mailing out surveys to a broad range of health service providers to develop an overview of the health care system in Haliburton and identify gaps and duplications in service, says Gallant.

The next meeting of the committee will be held on February 14 at the Lloyd Watson Centre in Wilberforce.

Two commercial projects get approval in principle

Minden Council has approved, in principal, two commercial development projects along Bobcaygeon Road.

At their last regular meeting, the councillors approved the initial proposals for a bowling alley and, across the street, a second floor on the Guardian Drug Store building.

Developer Doug Johnson attended the meeting to explain his plans for building commercial office space on top of an existing building which houses the drug store and a law office.

Minden's chief building inspector, Tom Hubercheck, has reviewed the plans and recommended that, because of recent concerns about traffic safety along Bobcaygeon Road, that a shared entrance between the plaza and. Holliday-Rhodes medical clinic may be appropriate.

Johnson said that he plans to place fill behind the building to create parking at the back of the plaza and will "dress up" the front of his commercial addition.

"That's the kind of development we want to see on that strip," said councillor Lewis Stevens just prior to council's unanimous approval in principal.

The second project that council reviewed was Terry Clarke's proposal for an eight-lane bowling alley.

This is the same proposal which was turned down by council and the Planning Advisory Committee when Clarke applied for a severance. Clarke took the severance application to the county's Land Division Committee who overturned the township and approved the severance.

Clarke said his building will be set in to the slope of the hill and will be two storeys at the front and one storey at the back. The bowling alley will be housed in the lower level and the upper level will contain two apartments.

Because bowling alleys are not covered in the township's official plan, Hubercheck said he had to improvise when it came to calculating parking requirements for the development. By combining the parking regulations for restaurants and public use areas, Hubercheck arrived at a requirement of 18 spaces for on-site use.

Councillor Mike Maher tried to come up with an appropriate bowling term to comment on the proposal, but is was Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry who provided the quip "how about 'strike a deal'," but Maher said he thought that was "hokey."

tors. These members will be involved in teaching young snowmobilers to get their Motorized Snow Vehicle Operators Licences.

Anyone who has reached the age of 12 is eligible to apply for a licence, but they must first pass a prescribed course. This licence allows people between the ages of 12 to 15 to operate a snowmobile on a trail. It does not allow them to drive on or alongside a roadway.

Despite the number of accidents being reported this season, Gemmel says the vast majority of snowmobilers are safe drivers. However, he says the few who drive recklessly find themselves in accidents and it makes the whole sport appear to be dangerous.

To help people safely enjoy snowmobiling, Constable Maybee offers some timely advice:

—Don't go out snowmobiling alone, he says. Always travel with a second sled and don't drive too close together. This way, if one snowmobile gets in trouble there will be someone else close by to help out.

—If you do wind up in the water, try not to panic and climb up onto the ice. Then, make a bee-line for the nearest shelter. Hypothermia sets in quick.

—Whenever you head out, dress warm and be prepared to stay out overnight. Snowmobiles do break down and you could find yourself in a position where you have to stay put until morning. He says it is a good idea to pack a few chocolate bars, a lighter, and some flares.

—It's best to wear layers of clothing rather than one heavy snow suit. This way you can avoid sweating by shedding a few layers of clothing if you have to do some walking or heavy work, says Maybee. If your clothing gets damp from perspiration, it will be hard to get warm again.

—Tell someone where you are going and when you plan to be back.

Citizens question the cost of progress

Reflections

by Dr. David Suzuki

Economic growth is upheld as society's highest priority and the measure of "progress".

But often it is achieved at the cost of the environment—through loss of wilderness and the pollution of air, water and soil. So citizen's groups are sprouting up all over the country to oppose further deterioration of their surroundings.

In Prince Edward Island, residents have fought construction of high-priced condominiums in a natural sand dunes area and others actively oppose a fixed link with the mainland.

Natives and environmentalists in Quebec have been joined by Americans in objecting to the next phase of the James Bay Hydro Project. Groups in Ontario protest the placement of a toxic waste treatment facility, expansion of nuclear plants and logging the Temagami forest.

Saskatchewan groups continue to oppose the Rafferty and Alameda dams and uranium mining, while Albertans have rallied to stop a dam on the Oldman river and to block construction of huge pulp mills in the north.

British Columbia is a battleground where citizens fight logging in critical watersheds, a garbage dump near Cache Creek and a ferrochromium plant in Nanaimo.

Proponents of each of these projects tout them as vital for the creation of jobs and profit, and counterattack by depicting environmentalists as enemies of progress.

Thus, the British Columbia Environmental Information Institute has been established to provide "balance" in contentious issues to ensure a sound environment while supporting the resource-based industries. The president is Gerry Furney, mayor of Port MacNeil on Vancouver Island, a town that depends heavily on the forest industry. Much of the institute's funding comes from the forest companies.

Peter Bentley is the chief executive officer of Canadian Forest Products (Canfor) and a strong institute supporter. Last fall he wrote to Diane Strom, the mayor of Gibsons, near whose jurisdiction Canfor's Port Mellon pulp mill is located. On behalf of the institute, Bentley solicited support and money from Strom.

He wrote; "I would urge upon you to take this matter under advisement as a prospective, low cost investment in the interest of the well being of your community and its individuals, to offset emotional, often orchestrated, highly organized, anti-everything movements that we have come to expect as we fulfill our daily tasks."

Bentley's portrayal of environmentalists plus the title of the institute is a deliberate corruption of language. Environmentalists are not against everything. They fight for clean air, clean water and clean food; they want to retain wilderness and biodiversity; they try to ensure survival in the future. It is a self-serving reversal of truth to suggest that those who look beyond maximizing immediate profit to maximizing the world of their children and grandchildren are "anti-everything".

And what are the "daily tasks" Bentley wants to perpetuate?

All five tests of toxic components in water effluent from his Port Mellon pulp mill last May exceeded the legal limits.

Government tests of effluents involve taking a discharge sample, diluting it threefold with intake water and placing live fish in it. If half of the fish die in 96 hours, the level of effluent is acceptable. In all five May tests from the Port Mellon mill, every fish died withing hours.

A government report showed that the Port Mellon plant emits the highest level of chlorinated organics of all pulp mills in the province. But the government has never enforced its own standards. Instead, because of pollution, the entire fishery around the mills has been closed!

Every adult today can attest through personal experience and memory to the degradation of the environment. Whether it's a drained swamp, a cleared forest, a new dam or chemicals in the air, water and food, the planet is being destroyed before our eyes. This is not progress. Nor does it ensure the "well being" of a community.

At the current rate of "resource extraction," it is predicted that within three decades the only wilderness left on the planet will be those tiny pockets set aside by farsighted societies.

That's what today's struggles are all about; we are deciding what we will leave for our children.

It is those who want to "harvest", "extract", "liquidate" and "develop" it all for immediate returns who are the anti-everythings. They oppose the maintenance of everything that matters for our physical - and spiritual - survival.

Acid rain report

The following report on precipitation events was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset and compiled by Environment Canada.

This report covers the period of January 21 to January 27.

January 21 - 7 cm snow, 4.3 pH, from southwestern Quebec and eastern Ontario.

January 22 - 3 cm snow, 4.4 pH, from Michigan and southern Ontario.

January 23 - 8 mm mixed rain and snow, 4.3 pH, from central Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and eastern Ontario.

January 24 - 5 mm mixed rain and snow, 4.2 pH, from Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and southern Ontario.

January 25 - 11 mm mixed rain and snow, 4.3 pH, from Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and southern Ontario.

January 27 - 1 cm snow, 4.7 pH, from southern Michigan, Ohio and southern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

MAKING YOU FEEL JUST RIGHT

EIGHT IS ENOUGH: Steve Colliver's rink didn't make it to the prize table in last weekend's Minden Winter Carnival Curling Bonspiel, but they got prizes enough in their first game when they scored an eight-ender in the fifth end of the game against Ted Burbidge's Newmarket rink. An eight-ender is when one team manages to have all eight of their rocks in scoring position in an end. And although it is a rarity to score a perfect end, it is not uncommon in the Colliver family—Steve's father, Bob, and brother, Brent, have both skipped teams to perfect ends in the past. Curling with Steve in the Winter Carnival 'spiel were Sandra Oakley, Merv Mintz and Monique Colliver. Ironically, their opponents in this game did make it to the prize table at the end of the 'spiel. Ted Burbidge's rink was the runner up in the 'B' event.

Board of Education begins drug awareness

Principals and vice-principals are the first to participate in government funded sessions

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

In-service training on drug and alcohol awareness has begun for the teachers and administrative staff in local schools.

At last Tuesday's board of education meeting, Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson reported to the trustees that the county's principals and vice-principals took part in an awareness training seminar in January.

Drug and alcohol awareness training for teachers is being conducted across the province as part of a program initiated by the Ontario government.

"For once the ministry (of education) made dollars available," said Robinson. The board will receive funding of $7,000 over two years to put the program in place.

As part of this program, the board has set up three training sessions being conducted by Dick O'Brien of the Council on Drug Abuse.

Robinson reported on the session O'Brien had with the board's principals and vice-principals on January 15.

O'Brien warned the principals to "never let anyone speak to students about drugs and alcohol unless you know what they're going to talk about and you approve," said Robinson.

In order to deal with student abuse of drugs and alcohol, O'Brien said teachers should first raise their own awareness. Part of this process involves realizing that alcohol abuse is the number one drug problem.

Robinson said O'Brien also dispelled the common misconception that young people who abuse drugs or alcohol have emotional problems. He said 80 to 90 per cent of drug abusers "drift into it" and have no special problems. Peer pressure and "being in the wrong place at the wrong time" account for many students becoming involved in drugs.

O'Brien told the principals and vice-principals that students use drugs because the effect of the substances produces an experience "close to spirituality" where the focus is on internal feelings.

These internal feelings lead to the drug users becoming more introverted and talking less to adults.

According to O'Brien, it's difficult to reason with young people about the dangers of drug use because they believe they are indestructable and don't believe in negative consequences of their actions.

Robinson said O'Brien trains teachers to give students the power to make the right decisions. "He believes in the 'Say No' campaign, but says you must teach kids how to say 'no'," said Robinson. "Kids aren't going to say 'no' just because you tell them to."

O'Brien also believes in spending more time working with students who aren't already using drugs. Once a student is already a drug user, the help required goes beyond what can be done in the classroom.

Robinson said O'Brien is a big believer in trying to teach students morals and values because "sometimes that's what the students want to hear."

Another approach O'Brien supports is mandatory drug testing in the workplace. Even though many people are opposed to the tests on the grounds that they constitute an invasion of privacy, O'Brien thinks the testing should be encouraged to "get at the people who need help."

O'Brien led the principals and vice-principals on a brief history of substance abuse in society over the last 40 years. In the 1950's, alcohol was the most commonly abused drug, but its consumption was frowned upon and it was something to be kept hidden.

In the 1960's psychedelic drugs grew in popularity with the 'hippy' movement, and among young people drugs were used openly and considered 'cool'.

In the 1970's the most popular drugs were the ones derived from the cannabis plant, marijuana and hashish. The 1980's saw the use of cocaine, and its potent derivitive 'crack', become more popular among students.

O'Brien predicts the 1990's will be the age of 'technodrugs'. These will be legal drugs taken in combinations that produce an intoxicating effect.

Paralleling the evolution of drug use is the changing trend in the approach to drug education. During the 1950's teachers and parents preached moral values. In the 1960's they relied on fear, trying to scare students about the ill-effects of drug use. In the 1970's the focus was on advice, giving students facts about drug abuse and trusting them to make their own decisions.

In the 1980's and 1990's O'Brien says the focus is shifting towards trying to teach students how to say no to drugs.

The training for the principals and vice-principals is the first of three such sessions. In June, O'Brien will host a session for guidance staff and home form teachers, and in November all teachers in the county will receive the training.

Stanhope fire dept. among the best

The Stanhope Township Fire Department is again among the top volunteer departments in the province in fire prevention.

Winners in the 1989 forest fire prevention plan competition for volunteer fire departments are: North Himsworth first, Stanhope second and Argyle third. Prizes of $500, $300 and $200 respectively will be awarded to the respective fire fighters' associations as soon as suitable arrangements can be completed.

In announcing the winners Lew Ringham, Bracebridge, Chairman of the Ontario Forestry Association's Forest Fire Education Committee, congratulated the winners and welcomed the increased attention given forest fire prevention by the volunteer fire brigades.

The competition, sponsored by the Association, ran in the Parry Sound, Muskoka and Haliburton jurisdictions. Emphasis was placed on the prevention of fires caused by recreationists and brush burners. Quantities of forest fire prevention posters, buttons, and instructional materials were provided to the local fire departments for their use in their prevention plans.

Reeves and mayors and fire chiefs in the competition area were contacted early in the year by Barry Petman, Huntsville, who was engaged by the OFA to look after the competition. He visited most of the fire stations and spoke at many of their meetings. Entry forms were to be submitted by the fire departments to Petman who then supplied a kit of forest fire prevention materials and a sample plan outline. Draft plans were submitted and evaluations undertaken at the end of the activity in the late summer.

Judging of submissions was handled by a committee including Peter Gagnon, Sault Ste. Marie, Jerry Spray, Huntsville, Bill Ray, North Bay, all of the Ministry of Natural Resources, Bruce Gurgeon of the Fire Marshall's office, Parry Sound, and Ringham and Petman on behalf of the OFA. Plans were judged on the basis of their identification of problems and effective solutions.

The Association is currently considering plans for a 1990 competition of a similar nature.

Girl Guides are keeping busy

The First Minden Guide Company has been quite busy lately and would like to tell what they were involved in during November and December.

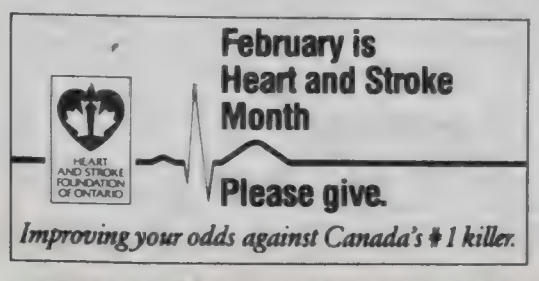
Since their last report, the Guides enrolled 15 girls. It was a great success and Madam Commissioner was there on November 21 to do the honours and present a few badges. Parents were invited to witness the ceremony in which 15 new Tenderfeet joined the company. Everyone enjoyed the refreshments made by the girls working on their bakers' badges. Later, everyone joined in the campfire, where stories were told, games were played and songs were sung.

On December 2, the girls put on a fund raiser at the Village Green. This was a craft show and it was a very busy day with plenty of support. The girls raised almost enough money to buy a tent.

Also on December 2, the Brownies, Scouts and Cubs had a Christmas carol sing at the Village Green. The Girl Guides had a good time carolling in the Sunrise apartments, Staanworth Terrace and Staanworth Court.

On December 21, they packed White Gift boxes. They were amazed at the generosity of everyone who contributed to this effort to help the needy.

And shortly before Christmas, the girls sold cheese and helped raise money for the First Minden Guides.



Staanworth Court news

January,
— a beginning
— a time to start new
— so I would like to share this prayer with you.

O God give us the Serenity to accept what cannot be changed, the Courage to change what should be changed, and the Wisdom to know the difference.

— by R. Niebuhr

Our first meeting of the new year was mostly discussion, as items were left on hold for members to consider and talk about at next meeting. Sirri N. kindly donated a lovely crocheted tablecloth - to the club to raise money. Our Pres. Holly announced that tickets would be printed and sold at $3.00 each. The draw will be in May after all residents are back home.

Our warmest wishes of health and happiness go out to our January birthday folk, Holly C., Fern D., Dolly A., Norma D., Sirri M., Ernie A., and Henry H.

To our sick — Sylvia Howard in Minden Hospital, and Ivy Angliss, who has become a resident of the Retirement Home in Lochlin, we all wish you the best of health. We are glad to report Mabel Trodd was able to return with her husband to their vacation resort. We wish you continued health, Mabel.

We wish to welcome to our Court Maxine Cross. We trust you will enjoy our 'family' atmosphere.

A few of our residents enjoyed the Sled Dog Derby held in our community. We congratulate those in charge, as this is another International event hosted by our community and worthy of our patronage.

We thank Bill and Fern Donnelly for showing their film on "Golf with Dork" - starring Tim Conway. A real comedy depicting 'how to play golf' by Tim.

A saying — It is not necessarily our position that makes us happy, it's our disposition.

A very interesting meeting was held in our Lounge with our Fire Marshall, Don Booth. In a dramatic way the dangers involved with fire were displayed on film and well explained. We thank you most sincerely, Don.

We are glad to see Corinne Bonneville back from a very enjoyable trip to see her sister in California. Corinne Arsenault accompanied her mother and report a very relaxing holiday.

A conversation carried on in our Games room recently went thus, — Cap. M — O.K. Henry, it's your turn. You need a 4.

Henry — O.K. — (He got 4). Similarily for a 6 he was successful. At the end of the third game, —

Cap. M — (in a very nonchalant way) — You need 50 now, Henry.

Cap. B — (encouragingly said) — You can do it, Henry.

Henry — I'll try. — (He did, — a bull's eye) Well, my choice of words can best be expressed by a ? to describe Henry's looks when he saw what had happened and to hear Cap. B — (exclaim in disbelief, almost) — You're hired. No question.

By now you will have guessed we must be playing Darts. You are right. However, I must explain we have our own rules and play all in the name of Enjoyment. Congratulations, Henry. We do enjoy that hearty and contagious laugh of yours. May you never change.

Yes, it is coming to that time of year — income tax — when the words of one Sr. Citizen remarked —

For the good old times I pine
When the Gov't lived within its income
Without so much of mine.

See you.

Hydro worker joins quarter century club

In recognition of 25 years of service with Ontario Hydro, Joe Cox was installed in the quarter century club and on January 22 he received a plaque from Minden Area Manager John Lane.

Cox, 48, is one of three Hydro employees still working at the Minden Office to make the Quarter Century Club. In addition to the certificate from Hydro and his fellow employees, Cox received a wrist watch as a gift.

During his 25 years of work at the Minden Area office, Cox has worked in all departments. He began working for Ontario Hydro at the age of 22 and has worked in the yard for three years, been in forestry twice and now he is on lines.

Cox has actually worked at Hydro for more than 25 years, but because his service was broken, he didn't qualify for the award until January 1.

In addition to the certificate and gift, Cox will also have the opportunity to attend a special banquet for Hydro's Quarter Century Club members to be held later this year at the Royal York in Toronto.

OPP Notes

by Const. Mike Maybee
1-800-461-6488

During the week of January 22 to 28, officers of the Minden OPP detachment investigated 51 general occurrences and six accidents with four persons injured.

ASSAULT

Johnathon Franklin Hicks, 29, of Haliburton has been charged with assault causing bodily harm after police were called to a Haliburton residence on January 14.

The victim of the assault received minor injuries.

Hicks is to appear in Provincial Court in Minden on March 2.

TRAFFIC SQUAD

Recent studies by the OPP show there has been an increase in traffic accidents resulting in injuries.

Many of these injuries are caused by excessive speed, failing to wear seat belts, disobeying stop signs and impaired driving

In an effort to reduce the accidents in Haliburton County, Minden OPP have formed a traffic squad which will be patrolling to combat these offences. Strict enforcement of Highway Traffic Act and Criminal Code driving laws have proven to be a major factor in the reduction of traffic accidents. The community is requested to assist by taking more care when driving.

SNOWMOBILE LICENCING

Anyone who has reached the age of 12 may apply for and, on completion of a specific course, receive a motorized snow vehicle operators licence. The licence permits a person between the ages of 12 and 15 to operate a snowmobile on a trail. It does not allow these people to operate a snowmobile on, along or crossing a highway, which includes county and township roads.

To operate a snowmobile on or along a highway, a person must be 16 years of age and be in possession of a valid Ontario drivers licence or a Snow Vehicle Operators Licence.

ARSON

Charges of arson have been laid by police in connection with a house fire that happened on Oct 23 at Highland Gate Estates.

Wilbert George Dennison, 34, and his wife Patricia Marie Dennison, 29, have both been charged. They are scheduled to apear in Provincial Court on April 6.

THEFTS

—A 1980 Moto Ski, model 340 was stolen from a property on Kennisis Lake.

—A quantity of firewood was stolen from a property on Haliburton Lake.

—A 1989 Arctic Cat snowmobile, model 650, was stolen from a property on Beech Lake.

NEW PHONE NUMBER

Highlands residents are reminded that the new phone number for emergency calls to the OPP is 1-800-461-6488. Administrative calls can still be made to the old number, 286-1431.

Preview of spring

Now Valentine's Day is drawing near,
A time for happiness and cheer,
We get more sunlight every day,
A sign that winter is going away,
We all are starting to think of spring,
A time when the birds begin to sing,
The ice will soon be leaving the ground,
Making it nicer for getting around,
So let us try to be happier and nicer,
To our friends and then before we know it,
This long old winter will end.

"YOUR KEY TO THE HIGHLANDS"

New law will protect circuit design

Report From Ottawa

by Bill Scott, M.P.

Technology is a multi-edged sword: it can create problems as it solves others.

Take integrated circuits, for example. Integrated circuits, frequently called chips, can be found virtually everywhere: from a child's toy to interplanetary space probes. They have revolutionized the way we handle information, made huge machines small, and enabled people thousands of miles apart to converse with crystal clarity.

To design such a marvel as an integrated circuit requires a unique alloy of art and science; and this fact causes problems for those who seek intellectual property protection for the fruit of their labours.

The problem lies not so much in what an integrated circuit does, but in how it does it. The electronic circuits of an IC product are embodied in a three-dimensional pattern of hills and valleys called a topography; the speed, efficiency and flexibility of a circuit depends on the ingenuity of the topographic designer.

Because neither the Patent Act nor the Copyright Act are deemed adequate to fully protect the intellectual property of a topographic design, Harvie Andre, acting Minister for Consumer and Corporate Affairs, has introduced into the House of Commons a Bill that creates a discrete and separate class of legal protection: the Integrated Circuit Topography Act.

The Bill proposes not to protect the function of an integrated circuit, but rather the topography that makes that function possible. Certain other aspects of a chip's existence, circuit diagrams and manufacturing processes, for example may already be protected by other patents.

Such protection is important, because Canada is an active player in the world of high technology, particularly in the area of of telecommunications. In 1988, we exported nearly $750 million in telecommunications equipment, with just over half of that going to the United States. Integrated circuits made much of that technology possible.

The proposed legislation is very much in step with other legislative changes aimed at improving intellectual property laws; both the Patent Act and the Copyright Act have been amended so as to encourage innovation and creativity in Canada.

Rotary raises over $13,000

The Haliburton Rotary Club has helped the Ontario Easter Seal Society in its fund-raising efforts. The club sponsored its annual Snowarama, January 27 and raised over $13,000 for the charity.

The event attracted 74 snowmobilers who travelled 100 km over trails in the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve. Del Taylor of Beaverton led the participants, bringing in $1400 in cash. Paul Wilson of Haliburton was second at $1200.

Snowmobilers will have another opportunity to help handicapped children this weekend as the Rotary Club of Minden hosts its Snowarama. Registration for the event will take place at the Minden Arena, February 10 starting at 7 a.m. Pledge sheets are available by calling 286-4667.

ACW serve tea

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Thursday afternoon was Birthday tea party time and the Anglican women from St. Andrew's Church in West Guilford provided and served a delicious lunch. It was a birthday tea and the ladies brought a beautiful birthday cake. Those having January birthdays were Alice Todd, Jan. 9, Hazel Hoskins, Jan. 15, May Horsley, Jan. 17, and Charlotte Fry, Jan. 25. The residents thank you very, very much for the lovely lunch and birthday cake and look forward to your next tea party.

Thursday night Jim Carrell was our bingo caller. We spent a happy time playing bingo. Thank you Jim for help with the bingo. His calling was very clear.

Friday was happy hour. Bill Payne, Eldon Deacon and George Smith (who drove all the way from Oshawa) played for the residents and Doris played the piano. They and their music is greatly appreciated. The volunteers for the happy hour are thanked very much for their help and were Ena and York Marion, Mary Guillemin and Melvin Robertson and we must not forget Linda's part. We sincerely thank you all.

Friday night Bill Payne, Eldon Deacon and George Smith came back to play for us in the Main Lounge. One of their group was absent since he was in Florida. We really enjoyed the song they sang. We thank them very much and will be awaiting their next visit.

Sunday night chapel service was conducted by Rev. John Burgess with Alice Jones playing the organ. We were pleased to have room enough in the back of the Chapel to be able to move the wheelchairs around so easily. It is surprising how much more room the removing of one pew makes. We thank Rev. Burgess and Alice Jones for the service and those responsible for taking out the pew.

I would like to comment on how well the housekeeping staff do their work keeping our home so clean under the guidance of Marie Baker.

Monday Evelyn Coleman was here for Bible Study. She chose two women, Rachel and Leah to study. How different the sisters were in character. Thank you Evelyn for all the work and time you put in for us.

Monday night Ena and York Marion came to show movies. There were eight present. The first one was "Bear Country", second "Tugboat Mickey" and "Equatorial River" was the Amazon River. We enjoyed them, but would like less bear stories for a while.

Tuesday morning the Chapel service was taken by Father Felix of the Catholic Church, Kinmount. Hyland Crest wishes to thank him for the service.

Ruby Lewis had her sister-in-law to see her Wednesday afternoon.

Gladys Kirkpatrick had her son Harold and wife Wendy to visit her Wednesday morning from Bobcaygeon.

Bob Mitchell is well enough to come to the main dining room, also Ada Turrall is able to come to the Main Dining room after her fall.

Terry and Norma took me to Peterborough to see my sister May Cameron who is still in Civic Hospital.

Directions

Having done that, I suggest the following:

— consult representatives of different faiths to develop a comprehensive religious education curriculum;

— seek support from local community religious leaders, lay persons and boards of education to develop and encourage the teaching of this curriculum in the schools;

— make imaginative use of local resources i.e. willing people of other faiths than Christianity to share their experience and belief;

— teach this to all levels. There is no need to worry about confusing the kids; if we teach them about the wonderful variety of nature, why not the amazing richness of the world's varied religions?

And so, two cheers. I shall reserve the third for the time when some action will be taken to further understanding between religions in the schools, instead of making one superior to all the rest.

This will be difficult, it will take a great deal of effort, time and money. However, I know it will be worth it.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

January was much more moderate than December, also the mildest in the past 10 years. Considerable precipitation, most in the form of rain. Several rain storms with fairly high winds.

Trivia: February 9, 1934 was bitterly cold in southern Ontario and for only the second time in recorded history Lake Ontario froze over completely. The first was in February 1875. Even in severe winters Lake Ontario is normally less than one-quarter ice covered.

The Ministry of Health and Welfare has recently mailed renewal applications for the (GIS) Guaranteed Income Supplement, to all eligible Old Age Security recipients.

The GIS, is a supplementary amount added to the basic pension when a pensioner's income falls below a determined level. Applications are required each year since entitlement is based on the pensioner's income for the preceding calendar year, and if married, on the combined income of the husband and wife.

Before completing the form, it is very important that recipients wait until they have received all T4 slips for income received during 1989. T4 slips are issued from any of the following sources: retirement pension; superannuation or annuity; pension from another country (specifying the source and the amount in Canadian dollars); Canada Pension; Quebec Pension; interest from the bank / trust company / bonds or mortgages; employment; unemployment insurance benefit; rent; self employment; dividends or any other form of income. Be sure and retain all income information slips for income tax purposes.

If the supplement form is completed without the true figures, it could cause a decrease in the amount received, or put the recipient in a pay-back situation at a later date. If you are not receiving the supplement at the present time, perhaps you could be eligible. The following guidelines will help you determine your eligibility: Maximum income you can receive as a single OAS recipient — $9,720.00. Married - (both pensioners) $12,672.00. Married - (one 65 or over) $23,568.00.

If you have any questons, please contact your nearest Information Centre. In Haliburton, the centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 457-2733. If you reside in the Minden area, the centre, located in the Municipal Building, Milne St., is open Monday and Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 286-4100. Anyone living outside the toll-free area, please call collect.

HEART AND STROKE FOUNDATION OF ONTARIO

IMPROVING YOUR ODDS AGAINST CANADA'S #1 KILLER.

FIRST PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF FISH STOCKING ON SELECTED WATERBODIES WITHIN MINDEN DISTRICT

The Ministry of Natural Resources, Minden District is considering stocking the following waterbodies with the indicated fish species:

Lake	Township	Proposed Fish Species 1st Priority	2nd Priority
Concession	Galway	Lake Trout	Splake
South Anson	Anson	Lake Trout	Splake
Ketch	Hindon	Brook Trout	Splake
Bat	Guilford	Splake
Cinder	Hindon	Splake
Copper	Lutterworth	Splake
Poker	Hindon	Splake	Largemouth Bass
Smudge	Digby	Splake
West Victoria	Digby	Splake
Victoria	Digby	Rainbow Trout	Largemouth Bass
Sprat	Hindon	Rainbow Trout
Charles	Monmouth	Largemouth Bass
Nogies	Galway	Largemouth Bass

The fish species to be stocked in the candidate lakes are listed as 1st Priority and 2nd Priority. Since there appears to be suitable habitat (oxygen and temperature) for the 1st Priority species, those species will be stocked initially and later assessed as to the success of the plantings. The 2nd Priority species provides an alternative in the event that the 1st Priority species fails to become established and provide a viable fishery.

This is the first time these species have been stocked in these particular waterbodies. This stocking effort is being made in order to create new artificial and new self-sustaining fisheries, thereby providing additional angling opportunities for lake trout, brook trout, splake, rainbow trout and largemouth bass.

This project is being planned and implemented under this Ministry's Approved Class Environmental Assessment for Fish Stocking in New Waters.

You are invited to direct any questions or concerns regarding this proposal to the District Manager, Minden District by February 23, 1990. The opportunity to request an individual assessment is available, if necessary.

Final notice of the project will be issued only to those who reply to this notice and to those directly affected.

CARD OF THANKS

A sincere thank you from the Minden Kinsmen and Kinette Clubs to the following businesses in town for their very generous donations towards the KIDS EVENTS at our Winter Carnival: Leon's Video Place, Minden Stedmans, Sandalwood Gifts, Home Hardware, Ginger Lee's, Westside Jug City, IDA Drug Store, Archie Stouffer School.

Many thanks to volunteer Carol Emmerson and daughter Bev for the great job they did with the face painting. THE KIDS LOVED IT.

A special thank you to my wonderful husband Warren and my great kids Amanda and Adam for all the help and support they gave me before, during and after this event. Also thanks to our very close friend and volunteer Meghan Cox.

Chairperson,
Sue Payne.

IN MEMORIAM

LUKE: In loving memory of a dear husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather Edward, who passed away January 31, 1982.

Your gently face and patient smile
With sadness we recall.
You had a friendly word for each
Then passed away, beloved by all.
Our hearts still ache with sadness
Our secret tears still flow
What it meant to lose you dear one
No one will ever know.
When the days are sad and lonely
And everything goes wrong
We seem to hear you whisper,
"Cheer up and carry on."
Each time we see your picture
You seem to smile and say,
"Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,
We'll meet again some day."
You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last,
We will remember thee.

Lovingly remembered by wife Edith & family, Robert, Jack, Joan and Donna-Marie.
